DETAILED ACTION

With respect to applicant arguments that claims 22-40 were not considered in the previous action, the examiner re-considers all the pending claims 11-40 and been examined as disclosed in this paper.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 11-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Focke et al. (5,040,685) in view of Chalin et al. (3,873,735).

Focke discloses a method for providing an enhanced opening system for a sealed container comprising: providing a package comprising a bag having lines of weakness (Fig. 1; via 40 and Fig. 3; via by portion 39) and a pull-tab opener secured to the bag proximate to the lines of weakness (Fig. 3; via 36, 38, and 41), the pull-tab opener having a pull-tab opening integral therewith, wherein the pull-tab opening is desired to be hooked with hooking means (Figs. 1 and 3; via hook means portion 39 and foil piece 41).

Focke does not disclose the step of providing suitable markings to convey instructions to use the pull-tab opener to access the package contents without utilizing a pinch force, wherein the package is adapted to be opened easily by a person who follows the instructions conveyed by the markings. However, Chalin discloses a similar method for providing an opening system for container comprising the step of providing suitable markings via words to convey instructions to use the pull-tab opener to access the package contents without utilizing a pinch force, wherein the package is adapted to be opened easily by a person who follows the instructions conveyed by the markings (Figs. 1-13; via the printed instructions on the bag explaining how to open such bag).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified Focke's method by having the step of providing suitable markings to convey instructions to use the pull tab opener to access package contents, as suggested by Chalin, in order to make it easy and simple opening and handling such containers (column 3, lines 39-41).

Regarding claims 13, 14, 16, 39, and 40: Focke discloses that the pull-tab opener is a reusable pull-tab opener with reusable securing means (Figs. 1 and 3; via 46).

Regarding claims 22-25: Focke discloses that the package contents comprise at least one product disposed within the sealed container, wherein the product is a disposable absorbent garment, which is napkin (Fig. 1; via tissue 43).

Regarding claim 26: it is inherent that Focke's package is capable of contenting articles of different types and sizes.

Regarding claim 27: Focke discloses that the bag and pull-tab opener are made from a polymeric plastic film, paper or paper composite and pull-tab opening is a finger sized opening (Figs. 1 and 3 and column 1, lines 5-10).

Regarding claim 28: Focke discloses that the hooking means comprises one to three fingers or and object, the object having a maximum diameter not greater than about eight cm, (Figs. 1 and 3; via the 39 and 41).

Regarding claim 29: Focke discloses that the lines of weakness are torn and an opening is created when the pull-tab opener is pulled (Fig. 3).

Regarding claim 30: Focke discloses that the package contents (43) are oriented proximate to the opening to facilitate easy removal (Fig. 3).

Regarding claims 19 and 31: Focke discloses that wherein at least a portion of the lines of weakness form a V-shape having a perforation junction or a U-shape, wherein the U-shape has two substantially parallel lines of perforations and a slit or third line of perforations located substantially perpendicular to and in between the two substantially parallel lines of perforations at one end (Fig. 3; via the U-shaped opening).

Regarding claim 32: Focke does not disclose that the a portion of the lines of weakness form the V-shape. However, the examiner takes an official notice that V-shape weakness line to open a bag is old, well known, and available in the art.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have substituted Focke's U-shaped weakness line by having a V-shaped weakness line, as a matter of engineering design choice, in order to easily braking the weakness line and get easy and fast access to the contents of the container.

Regarding claim 33: Focke discloses that a portion of the lines of weakness form the U-shape and the reusable pull-tab opener covers the two substantially parallel line of perforations (Fig. 1).

Regarding claims 17 and 34: Focke discloses that the package is comprised of six panels arranged in a rectangular configuration and the substantially parallel lines of perforations extend across a portion of two adjacent panels, see for example (Fig. 2; via in upper and lower panels).

Art Unit: 3721

Regarding claims 18 and 35: Focke discloses that the package is comprised of six panels arranged in a rectangular configuration and the substantially parallel lines of perforations are contained on a single panel, see for example (Fig. 3; via the substantially parallel lines of portion 41).
